Amanda A. Van Ert

COLUMBIA, SC

Amanda Van Ert focuses her practice on litigation matters, including motor vehicle litigation, products liability and premises liability. She represents civil clients, insurance carriers and their insureds, bringing a practical and straightforward approach to client service. Amanda believes in being upfront from the start, so clients understand where their case stands and what to realistically expect throughout the litigation process.

Prior to joining the firm, Amanda served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable S. Bryan Doby, where she gained experience in both civil and criminal matters. During law school, she also worked with a variety of legal organizations, gaining exposure to litigation, workers' compensation, personal injury, social security disability, post-conviction relief matters and business litigation. This diverse background provides her with a well-rounded perspective on dispute resolution and client advocacy.

Outside of work, Amanda enjoys traveling to new destinations, trying new restaurants and spending time with her cat.
