Bradley J. Young

FLORENCE, SC

Bradley Young's practice focuses on workers' compensation matters, representing insurance carriers and self-insured employers. With nearly a decade of legal experience, Bradley brings a disciplined and solutions-oriented approach to client service, emphasizing efficiency and attention to detail.

Prior to joining MGC, Bradley built a diverse legal background through military service and public-sector practice. He served in the U.S. Army, where he focused on national security and administrative law, and later worked in administrative, criminal and legislative law. Bradley also gained extensive courtroom experience handling criminal matters in South Carolina's General Sessions and Magistrate Courts and has served as an Administrative Hearings Officer. His broad experience in litigation, administrative proceedings and government practice provides a strong foundation for advising clients and navigating complex legal issues.

Outside of work, Bradley enjoys spending time with his family and going on superhero adventures with his two toddlers.
