NASHVILLE, TN – Law firm McAngus Goudelock & Courie (MGC) welcomed Brent Moore to its Nashville office, adding over two decades of experience to the firm's Mid-South workers' compensation team. Moore represents employers, third-party administrators and insurance carriers in workers' compensation matters, consistently aligning legal strategy with client objectives and cost-effective outcomes.

Admitted to practice in state and federal courts in Tennessee, Moore has built a reputation for guiding clients through the full lifecycle of workers' compensation claims, while keeping business priorities at the forefront. He is also a frequent lecturer on workers' compensation issues and their broader impact on the industry, demonstrating his active role in staying ahead of issues affecting employers and carriers across the state.

Over the course of his career, Moore has handled a wide range of civil matters, including workers' compensation, employment, commercial disputes and tort claims. Earlier in his practice, he developed extensive trial experience across diverse areas such as adoption, business relations, construction defects, insurance coverage, premises liability and personal injury. This breadth of experience informs Moore's practical approach and provides clients with well-rounded counsel.

Moore earned his Juris Doctor from the University of Tennessee College of Law and his Bachelor of Arts from the University of Tennessee. He is a member of DRI, the Nashville Bar Association, the Tennessee Bar Association and the Tennessee Trial Lawyers Association.
