Serving in the United States Army as a Paralegal Noncommissioned Officer stands out as “one of the most rewarding experiences” in Hannah Marrero’s life. The military offered her countless opportunities to grow, lead and contribute in meaningful ways. These experiences continue to shape her both personally and professionally.

As a paralegal NCO, Hannah supported commanders, soldiers and their families by ensuring that legal matters were handled efficiently and with the utmost care. “Every day brought something new, whether it was preparing legal documents, assisting with investigations or assisting on military justice matters,” she shared. The variety and importance of the work kept her challenged and motivated, and she took pride in knowing that her efforts directly contributed to her unit’s mission.

Some of Hannah’s most memorable and humbling moments came through her assignment to military funeral honors. She had the privilege of folding and presenting the American flag to the families of deceased veterans, an experience that left a lasting impact. “It reminded me of the deep respect and gratitude that our nation owes to those who have served, and how our families have made sacrifices alongside us,” she reflected.

For Hannah, her time in the Army remains a profound and deeply meaningful chapter, one defined by service, sacrifice and an unwavering commitment to others.
