Wade G. Manor

JACKSON, MS

Wade Manor's practice focuses on civil litigation matters in the firm's Jackson office, bringing almost three decades of insurance defense experience to MGC. He also serves on MGC's COVID-19 Response Team.

In his representation of insureds, insurance companies, corporations and individuals in both the State and Federal Courts of Mississippi, Wade understands the importance of genuinely personal service. "I make it a point to assure my clients that I am not only representing them because of a lawsuit or a claim made against them, but that I truly understand how their business or personal life can be affected by allegations and the litigation process," he says. Wade also takes pride in being available to his clients at any time, whether at work or at home, to address any questions or concerns, while keeping them thoroughly informed regarding all aspects of their case.

Prior to joining MGC, Wade practiced at a litigation defense firm since 1992, climbing the ladder from law clerk to managing partner.

Outside of MGC, Wade enjoys playing golf, exercising, watching Auburn athletics and traveling with his family. He and his wife, Pam, were married on New Year's Eve in 1994. Together, they have three daughters, Mary Ellen, Katie Garrett and Haley.
